

PRESIDENT BUSH, IS THIS WHERE OUR NATIONAL FORESTS ARE HEADING?

[ TUNE IN FRIDAY, MAY 4 ]

By May 4, President Bush will decide whether to roll back protections for our last pristine National Forests.

Will he ignore the American people and open these last untouched forests to logging, mining, and drilling?

Or will he support the balanced Roadless Area Conservation Rule that protects the last 30% of these precious lands?

Will he respect the years of study, more than 600 public hearings, and 1.6 million public comments — 95% of which enthusiastically support the policy?

Or will he heed the call of the timber industry and other corporate special interests — which can already log, mine, and drill on most National Forest lands?

Mr. President, on May 4, what's it going to be?

Once these forests are gone, they're gone forever.
